

College of Social Sciences and Law

INFORMATION & COMMUNICATION STUDIES is the study of how people learn, work, and play with information (such as: books, text messages, apps and school work) and technology (for example: computers, mobile phones, tablets and games).
Questions we ask: how should children use tablets for school? Can we talk to computers and can they talk back? How can we help people organise their photos, apps, music, videos?