

IRISH PHILOSOPHICAL CLUB
ANNUAL CONFERENCE 2018

All Welcome!

The Club will hold its next meeting on Friday and Saturday, 16th and 17th February 2018 at the Boyne Valley Hotel & Country Club (<http://www.boyne-valley-hotel.ie>) in Drogheda (B&B Single Room: €74; Twin/Double Room : €105; Conference Dinner (Friday): €29.50)

Programme

Friday, February 16

7:00–8:30 Tom Walker (Queen’s University, Belfast)
“The constitutive rules for consent”
8:30 Dinner

Saturday, February 17

9:00–9:30 AGM
9:30–11:00 Katherine Furman (University College Cork)
“What is scientific objectivity good for?”
11:30–1:00 Quassim Cassam (University of Warwick)
“Epistemic Insouciance”
1:00–2:00 Lunch
2:00–3:30 Kenny Pearce (Trinity College, Dublin)
“The Monster of Malmesbury and the Bishop of Cloyne: Hobbist Origins of Berkeley’s Theories of Meaning and Inference”

All those those planning to stay at the hotel and/or go to the dinner are asked to contact either Jim Levine, Department of Philosophy, Trinity College, Dublin (jlevine@tcd.ie), Joseph Diekemper, School of Politics, International Studies, and Philosophy, Queen’s University, Belfast (j.diekemper@qub.ac.uk), or Jim O’Shea, School of Philosophy, University College Dublin (jim.oshea@ucd.ie) not later than Wednesday 7th February.

2017-18 Subscription fee (waived for students) of £8 sterling or €10 (which includes the Conference Registration Fee) may be paid at the conference to Jim O’Shea, UCD.