Prizes

Bank of Ireland Prizes

Since 1977 the Bank of Ireland has generously sponsored medals and prizes for the top three students in the First BCL Constitutional Law Examination; the Second BCL EU Law Essay, as decided by the current external adjudicator; and the BCL Degree Examination in Jurisprudence. Gold, silver and bronze medals are presented to the students in each of the above subjects along with the following corresponding cash prizes of €317.43, €126.97 and €95.23.

The Professor James C. Brady Memorial Prize in Equity

This annual prize commemorates James C. Brady (1940-1998), Professor of the Law of Property and Equity in University College Dublin. It was established in 2001 by the James C. Brady Memorial Trust as a tribute to Professor Brady and his skills in teaching and research in the field of equity and trusts.

The prize (currently a gold medal and a cheque for €250) is awarded to the student who, having passed the final year law examinations, attains first place in the Equity examination.

The Butterworths Law Prize

Butterworths publications to the value of €127 are awarded annually to the student who obtains first place overall in the First University Examination in Civil Law including the First University Examination in Civil Law (Law with French Law).

EBS Building Society Prize in Land Law

This prize (a gold medal and €317) is funded by the EBS Building society and is awarded to the student who obtains the highest mark in the subject Land Law and Succession in the Second BCL Examination.

The Maxwell Law Prize

Publications from Sweet and Maxwell Ltd., London, to the value of €150, are awarded annually to the student who obtains first place overall in the Second University Examination in Civil Law including the Second University Examination in Civil Law (Law with French Law).

Royal and Sun Alliance Gold Medal

The Royal and Sun Alliance Gold medal is awarded to the student who produces the best essay in Tort in First BCL as decided by the current external adjudicator. There is an accompanying cash prize of €419.

Swift McNeill Memorial Prize

The terms of the trust provide for the application of the net annual income (€51 approximately) in the award of a prize to a student entering the Honorable Society of King's Inns who shall have obtained the highest marks overall in the Faculty's Degrees.

Professional Qualifications

Solicitor

To qualify as a solicitor students must undertake a professional training course for solicitors provided by The Law Society of Ireland. To enter this course students must pass an examination covering certain 'core' subjects (Company Law, Constitutional Law, Criminal Law, Law of Contract, Law of Tort, Equity, European Union Law and Real Property) which are offered during the course of all of the Bachelor of Civil Law degrees, the Bachelor of Civil Law (Law with French Law) degree, and all of the Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies degrees. It is also necessary to pass an examination in Irish and to undergo a period of apprenticeship with an experienced solicitor. The training course and apprenticeship are normally completed in three years.

Barrister

To qualify as a barrister students must undertake a two-year professional course provided by the Honorable Society of King's Inns and leading to the award of the degree of Barrister-at-Law. Upon conferral, a barrister must then 'devil' for a period of one year with an experienced barrister. There is an annual entrance examination for admission to the Barrister-at-Law degree course which comprises the following subjects: Company Law, Criminal Law, Irish Constitutional Law, Law of Torts and Law of Evidence. In order to be eligible to sit the entrance examination in any year a candidate is required to hold an approved degree from an approved university which includes the following 'core' subjects: Land Law (including Law of Succession), Law of Contracts, Jurisprudence, Equity and Law of the European Union. The examination is held in August or September. Both the entrance examination subjects and the 'core' subjects are offered in all of the Bachelor of Civil Law degree courses; the Bachelor of Civil Law (Law with French Law) degree course; and the Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies degree course.

Syllabus of Courses for the Degree of Bachelor of Civil Law

First Year

Constitutional Law

LAW 1001

The constitutional law of the Republic of Ireland as found in the Constitution of 1937 and case law.

Reading will be indicated at the beginning of the session.

Criminal Law

LAW 1002

Historical introduction. The emergence of criminal justice. The evolution of the general principles of criminal liability. The concepts of malice and intention. The defences to a criminal charge. Homicide. Assault and cognate offences. Larceny and kindred offences.

Reading will be indicated at the beginning of the session.

Law of Contract

LAW 1003

The general principles of the law of contract as applied in Ireland.

Textbooks and relevant periodical literature will be indicated on reading lists. Students will be expected to purchase a copy of cases and materials for use in tutorials. These will be available at the commencement of the session.

Law of Tort

The Law of Tort is private law, as opposed to criminal or public law, and concerns the legal relationship that creates and imposes responsibilities on individuals. Tort law provides a number of distinct legal actions to resolve disputes arising between private individuals, the most common and frequent example being road traffic accident compensation claims. Actions in Tort are either based upon Statute or Common Law rules as developed by judges. An action in Tort will involve the infringement of an individual's private rights in relation to a number of legally protected interests. These interests concern in general both the reputation and physical/mental well-being of the person, property and financial matters.

A course of lectures will cover most of the following topics. The aim, purpose and function of the Law of Tort. Negligence and the duty of care imposing liability for negligent acts, words and omissions. Liability for personal injury, psychiatric illness and economic loss. The liability of occupiers, builders, vendors and lessors. The liability of statutory bodies. The standard of care including professional negligence and in particular medical negligence. Causation and remoteness of damage. Environmental aspects of land use including liability for nuisance both private and public, the rule in Rylands v. Fletcher, trespass to land and unintended fire damage. Liability for animals. Products liability. Trespass to the person, including assault, battery and false imprisonment. Trespass to goods. Defamation. Defences.

A comprehensive course outline indicating relevant reading materials will be made available at the start of term.

Legal System and Methods

LAW 1005

The structure and operation of the Irish legal system. The nature of legal reasoning.

Reading will be indicated at the beginning of the session.

LAW 2014

History of European integration; basic structure of the Union; incorporation of EU law into the Irish legal order; the institutional framework and acts of the EU institutions; legal principles and judicial remedies; the free movement of goods, persons, services, establishment and capital; Competition law; the effects of the Single European Act and future developments in the EU; policies of the EU.

B. Optional Subjects

Administrative Law

LAW 2001

Administrative Law deals with the constitution, powers and procedure of those bodies on which the law confers powers and duties of a public nature, such as Government Departments, local authorities, tribunals and certain professional bodies. The course examines the procedural and formal requirements applicable to administrative action and the principles governing the legal nature of administrative powers, discretions and duties.

In particular, the course deals with the distinct set of remedies dealing with public law questions – available in a single procedure, the application for judicial review. Issues covered include the extent to which the courts can control the exercise of discretionary powers by administrative authorities and the availability of remedies for unlawful administrative action.

The course also considers the impact of the Constitution and the effects of contact with European Union law on administrative law. Some stress is placed on the historical evolution of Irish administrative law.

Materials: Hogan & Morgan, Administrative Law in Ireland, 3rd ed., 1998

Banking Law

LAW 2002

An examination of the legal issues arising from the national and international operations of banks. Topics will include the regulation of credit institutions; the legal framework of the single market in banking; the bank-customer relationship with particular reference to bank liability for services provided; bank secrecy and money laundering; forms of finance encountered in banking transactions, including syndicated loans; transfer of loan assets by banks; bills of exchange with particular reference to cheques; banks and credit and security; legal considerations arising from customer insolvency and bank insolvency.

Environmental Law

LAW 2005

This course comprises a comprehensive examination of environmental law, from a national, European and International perspective. Environmental Law shall provide an account of all major environmental concerns other than planning and development and the built environment. It will analyse the principles applied to environmental protection and the application of environmental law in practice, including enforcement mechanisms.

This course is taught in two parts. Part I, the first semester, is an introduction to environmental law and the principles governing it. The emphasis will be on Irish Environmental Law. Topics include sources, principles and techniques of environmental protection; national regulatory framework; structure and powers of bodies having responsibility for the environment; the Environmental Protection Agency; integrated pollution control; environmental impact assessments. The course shall examine public participation and control; the right to information; procedures; appeals and judicial review; the enforcement of environmental law; the common law and environmental remedies; personal liability of individuals; fundamental rights and environmental law.

Part II, in the second semester, will expound on the material from the Part I and will deal with European and international environmental law. The subject matter will explore how environmental law operates within European, international and national law, focusing on the core issues and case-law. It will trace the development of Community environmental law and its principles of environmental protection. It will examine the powers of Community and international institutions; the basis of European environmental law; the legislative and decision-making process; harmonization; the implementation and enforcement of Community law; Member States' duties. It will examine how the environment is dealt with in international law; seminal agreements signed by the international community. The course will deal with the substantive environmental law relating to various pollutants and media- including waste, air, water, waste, habitat and conservation concerns. It will also address business concerns and environmental law such as trade and competition law; issues of corporate responsibility and liability.

Evidence

The law of Evidence is that system or body of rules which regulates the admission of proof in a court of law.

Rationale of proof and law of Evidence. Basic concepts. Relevance. Admissibility. Materiality. Receivability. Functions of judge and jury. Judicial discretion. Sources of law of Evidence. Types of Evidence. Burden of proof. Standard of proof. Presumptions. Judicial notice. Corroboration. Proof of law. Competence. Compellability. Examination of witnesses. Privileges. Exclusion associated with method of obtaining evidence. Confessional evidence. Evidence of disposition and character. Hearsay rule and its exceptions. Opinion evidence.

Family Law

LAW 2007

This course provides a comprehensive and current treatment of all aspects of law concerning the family and family relationships in Ireland. Family Law in Ireland is influenced by the interaction and impact of constitutional, public law, common law, criminal law, European law, European human rights law, international law and international and domestic statutory reforms of family law. It examines the rights and duties that arise from the existence of family relationships and deals with the procedures available to resolve such disputes. Family Law is one of the broadest and fastest expanding areas of law. The complexity of family relationships is mirrored in the study of the law governing those relationships providing a stimulating and interesting examination of current and controversial issues.

A course of lectures will be given on most of the following topics. Sociological aspects of the family. The family and the constitution. Formalities and the contract of marriage. Nullity of marriage, including the development of the void and voidable grounds. Resolution of marital breakdown covering legal separation, judicial separation and divorce. Consequences of marital breakdown, including maintenance, custody and access, financial and property relief. Domestic violence, spousal and cohabitee protection. International child abduction. Child abuse and care proceedings. Wardship. Adoption. Ownership of and disputes concerning family property. Recognition of foreign divorces. International maintenance. Abortion. The right to die.

A comprehensive course outline indicating relevant reading materials will be available at the start of term.

Intellectual Property Law

LAW 2008

Intellectual Property Law is concerned with protecting the fruits of intellectual or creative endeavour primarily by the grant of exclusive rights. The course covers:

- (1) patent law: statutory protection for inventions, including biotechnological and software-related inventions: Patents Act 1992.
- (2) law of confidence: general equitable action against a person who has divulged confidential information in breach of a duty of confidence.
- (3) passing off: action in tort for the protection of business goodwill as against traders using a similar trade name or product get-up.
- (4) trade mark law: statutory protection for registered trade names: Trade Marks Act, 1996.

- (5) trade marks on the internet: domain name disputes.

The first part provides an analysis of international commercial transactions and the second part is dedicated to dispute resolution in international commercial transactions. The following topics will be covered:

Part One: Analysis of International Commercial Transactions

Topics will include:

- A study of the law applicable to international commercial agreements and of the formation of international agreements.
- An overview of the main types of international commercial transactions such as:
 - international contracts (including contracts of international sales of goods, agency and distribution agreements, international transfer of technology and know-how agreements, counter-trade agreements);
 - international banking and financial law;
 - international tax law;
 - international company and bankruptcy law.
- The course will also focus on the protection and remedies available in case of breach or non-performance of international commercial agreements.

Part Two: Dispute Resolution in International Commercial Transactions

Topics will include:

- An overview of international dispute resolution, including:
 - international negotiation;
 - alternative dispute resolution;
 - court litigation of international commercial agreements.
- A study of international commercial arbitration with an emphasis on:
 - the analysis of the formation and the validity of the international arbitration agreement.

International Human Rights Law

LAW 2010

This course involves a study of the promotion and protection of human rights under international law. Since international human rights is itself a subset of public international law, the course entails a brief introduction to the development and nature of international law and the evolution of international human rights law.

The substantive part of the course includes a study of the legal foundations of contemporary international human rights law with particular emphasis on the international bill of rights drafted under the auspices of the United Nations. It also focuses on the means by which individuals may enforce their rights under the aegis of that organisation, e.g. through various complaint procedures and international fact finding processes. Other topics include, the protection afforded by international law to particular groups of persons, e.g. refugees and asylum-seekers.

The course also focuses on the European system for the protection of human rights established by the Council of Europe. In particular, it examines the individual petition procedure established by the European Convention on Human Rights, as well as critically analysing the jurisprudence of the European Court of Human Rights in relation to selected substantive rights guaranteed under the Convention.

Irish Legal History

LAW 2016

An overview of the history of law in Ireland. General considerations – sources, variety of legal records and their significance, impact of mainstream European legal traditions, nexus with English common law.

Gaelic Ireland – the law tracts, interpretation and historical value, consideration of selected tracts.

Medieval Irish lordship – arrival of common law, evolution of courts, import of common law doctrine, liberties and franchises, interaction of common law and brehon law.

From the Tudors to 1800 – constitutional development: Poynings' law, acts of state, non-enactment of Irish Bill of Rights; institutional diversity: palatinates, Munster and Connacht presidencies, prerogative and conciliar jurisdictions, ecclesiastical courts; the penal laws against Catholics and Dissenters.

Medical LawLAW 2017

Ideally, medical law serves important needs in our society: it regulates properly the medical profession; it provides a reliable and effective means of investigating medical accidents; it creates an adequate and rational system of compensation for patients suffering injury; and it gives doctors understandable guidance on those areas of medical practice of moral ethical sensitivity. This course covers in detail Irish medical law, includes a generous comparative dimension, and critically reviews the question of whether existing law meets the needs mentioned above.

The course has four parts. Part 1 examines the subject of medical law and ethics. It encompasses the nature of medical practice, the intersection between law and ethics, the question of a rational ethical framework for medical practice and law, and the issue of medical confidentiality and the duty of disclosure (with particular reference to treatment of HIV/AIDS). Part 2 deals with the subject of medical malpractice. The focus will be upon consent, medical negligence, medical litigation, drug-induced damage and fault liability. Part 3 concentrates on medical law in action in areas of life from conception to death. Its compass will include infertility, facilitating conception, contraception, abortion, infertility, wrongful conception, pre-natal injury, selective treatment of neonates, tissue donations and transplants, research, medical treatment and surgery, treatment of the dying and death. Part 4 is concerned with law and psychiatry. Basic elements include the concept of mental disorder, voluntary admissions to hospital, involuntary hospitalisation, the right to refuse treatment, the legal aspects of treatment, review of detentions and treatments, rights in hospital, patient advocacy, disabilities and discriminations, the criminal justice system and mental disorder.

Degree of Bachelor of Civil Law (European Legal Studies)

LWBDF002

General Description

The BCL Degree (European Legal Studies) is a four-year programme, the third year of which is spent abroad at a European university as an integral element in the degree programme. The degree is open to all students in the Faculty. However, it is important to stress that the number of students who can take part in the programme will be limited by the number of places available in any given year.

Admission Procedure

Registered Second Year Civil Law students may apply to transfer into the BCL Degree (European Legal Studies) programme. Applications should be submitted to the Faculty by mid-February. A presentation on the Erasmus/Socrates Exchange Programme will be made early in the second semester. Permission to transfer into the BCL (European Legal Studies) is conditional upon the applicant's passing the Second University Examination in Civil Law in the session in which such permission is sought. Admission to the degree will be dated from 1 September immediately following this examination; no deferral will be allowed.

Course Requirements

Students in this programme must attend an approved European university on a full-time basis for one academic year between the completion of the Second University Examination in Civil Law and enrolment in Final Year Civil Law courses. Choice of courses to be followed abroad should be made in consultation with the Director of the Erasmus/Socrates programme.

Registration for Final Year Civil Law courses in UCD must follow directly on the year spent abroad.

Examinations and Awards

During the year abroad, examinations will be taken in the host university. A satisfactory performance in these examinations will be a condition of entry to the final year of the BCL Degree (European Legal Studies) programme. Students whose performance in the relevant examinations is deemed unsatisfactory will be eligible for entry only to the final year of the BCL Degree programme. This may have financial implications for fees/grants.

The awards for the BCL Degree (European Legal Studies) will be as for the BCL Degree. Marks obtained during the year abroad will not affect the class of degree awarded at the end of the programme.

This course, as described above, is not a separate and distinct degree from the BCL Degree.

Degree of Bachelor of Civil Law (International)

LWBDFO003

General Description

The BCL (International) Degree is a four-year degree, the third year of which is spent abroad at a North American or at an Australian university as an integral element in the degree programme. The degree is open to all students in the Faculty. However, it is important to stress that the number of students who can take part in the programme will be limited by the number of places available in any given year.

Admission Procedure

Registered Second Year Civil Law students may apply to transfer into the BCL (International) programme. A presentation on the various International exchange programmes will be made in the first semester. Applications should be submitted to the Faculty at the end of the first semester. Permission to transfer into the BCL (International) is conditional upon the applicant's passing the Second University Examination in Civil Law in the session in which such permission is sought. Admission to the degree will be dated from 1 September immediately following this examination; no deferral will be allowed.

Course Requirements

Students in this programme must attend an approved North American or Australian university law school on a full-time basis for one academic year between the completion of the Second University Examination in Civil Law and enrolment in Final Year Civil Law courses.

Registration for Final Year Civil Law courses in UCD must follow directly on the year spent abroad.

Examinations and Awards

During the year abroad, examinations will be taken in the host university. A satisfactory performance in these examinations will be a condition of entry to the final year of the BCL (International) programme. Students whose performance in the relevant examinations is deemed unsatisfactory will be eligible for entry only to the final year of the BCL Degree programme. This may have financial implications for fees/grants.

The awards of the BCL (International) will be as per the BCL Degree. Marks obtained during the year abroad will not affect the class of degree awarded at the end of the programme.

This course, as described above, is not a separate and distinct degree from the BCL Degree.

Degree of Bachelor of Civil Law (Law with French Law)

LWBDF0004

General Description

The BCL (Law with French Law) is a four-year degree designed to offer students a thorough grounding in Irish Law together with a general formation in French law. The latter will be gained initially in University College Dublin, then deepened by an obligatory year of study at a partner French university. Upon successful completion of their legal studies in France students will be awarded a Diploma in French Law by the relevant partner university.

Year Abroad

Students in this programme must attend courses at a partner French University on a full-time basis for one academic year between the completion of the Second University Examination in Civil Law and enrolment in the Final Year of the BCL (Law with French Law) course.

Students must register with UCD for the year spent abroad. Registration for the Final Year of the BCL (Law with French Law) degree course must follow directly on the year spent abroad.

Examinations and Awards

The examination regulations shall be those applicable to the BCL degree, with the following modification:

During the year abroad, examinations will be taken in the host university. A satisfactory performance in these examinations will be a condition of entry to the final year of the BCL (Law with French Law) course. Students whose performance is deemed to be satisfactory in the examinations in the relevant French partner institution will be awarded a qualification equivalent to a diploma by that institution. Students whose performance in the relevant examinations is deemed to be unsatisfactory will be eligible for entry only to the final year of the undesignated BCL degree. Students are advised that this may have financial implications for fees or grants.

The awards for the BCL (Law with French Law) will be the same as those for the BCL degree. Marks obtained during the year abroad will not affect the class of degree awarded at the end of the programme.

Law of Tort

The Law of Tort is private law, as opposed to criminal or public law, and concerns the legal relationship that creates and imposes responsibilities on individuals. Tort law provides a number of distinct legal actions to resolve disputes arising between private individuals, the most common and frequent example being road traffic accident compensation claims. Actions in Tort are either based upon Statute or Common Law rules as developed by judges. An action in Tort will involve the infringement of an individual's private rights in relation to a number of legally protected interests. These interests concern in general both the reputation and physical/mental well-being of the person, property and financial matters.

A course of lectures will cover most of the following topics. The aim, purpose and function of the Law of Tort. Negligence and the duty of care imposing liability for negligent acts, words and omissions. Liability for personal injury, psychiatric illness and economic loss. The liability of occupiers, builders, vendors and lessors. The liability of statutory bodies. The standard of care including professional negligence and in particular medical negligence. Causation and remoteness of damage. Environmental aspects of land use including liability for nuisance both private and public, the rule in Rylands v. Fletcher, trespass to land and unintended fire damage. Liability for animals. Products liability.

Trespass to the person, including assault, battery and false imprisonment. Trespass to goods. Defamation. Defences.

A comprehensive course outline indicating relevant reading materials will be made available at the start of term.

B. Optional Subjects

Administrative Law

LAW 2001

Administrative Law deals with the constitution, powers and procedure of those bodies on which the law confers powers and duties of a public nature, such as Government Departments, local authorities, tribunals and certain professional bodies. The course examines the procedural and formal requirements applicable to administrative action and the principles governing the legal nature of administrative powers, discretions and duties.

In particular, the course deals with the distinct set of remedies dealing with public law questions – available in a single procedure, the application for judicial review. Issues covered include the extent to which the courts can control the exercise of discretionary powers by administrative authorities and the availability of remedies for unlawful administrative action.

The course also considers the impact of the Constitution and the effects of contact with European Union law on administrative law. Some stress is placed on the historical evolution of Irish administrative law.

Materials: Hogan & Morgan, Administrative Law in Ireland, 3rd ed., 1998.

Banking Law

LAW 2002

An examination of the legal issues arising from the national and international operations of banks. Topics will include the regulation of credit institutions; the legal framework of the single market in banking; the bank-customer relationship with particular reference to bank liability for services provided; bank secrecy and money laundering; forms of finance encountered in banking transactions, including syndicated loans; transfer of loan assets by banks; bills of exchange with particular reference to cheques; banks and credit and security; legal considerations arising from customer insolvency and bank insolvency.

Environmental Law

LAW 2005

This course comprises a comprehensive examination of environmental law, from a national, European and International perspective. Environmental Law shall provide an account of all major environmental concerns other than planning and development and the built environment. It will analyse the principles applied to environmental protection and the application of environmental law in practice, including enforcement mechanisms.

This course is taught in two parts. Part I, the first semester, is an introduction to environmental law and the principles governing it. The emphasis will be on Irish Environmental Law. Topics include sources, principles and techniques of environmental protection; national regulatory framework; structure and powers of bodies having responsibility for the environment; the Environmental Protection Agency; integrated pollution control; environmental impact assessments. The course shall examine public participation and control; the right to information; procedures; appeals and judicial review; the enforcement of environmental law; the common law and environmental remedies; personal liability of individuals; fundamental rights and environmental law.

Part II, in the second semester, will expound on the material from Part I and will deal with European and international environmental law. The subject matter will explore how environmental law operates within European, international and national law, focusing on the core issues and case-law. It will trace the development of Community environmental law and its principles of environmental protection. It will examine the powers of Community and international institutions; the basis of European environmental law; the legislative and decision-making process; harmonization; the implementation and enforcement of Community law; Member States' duties. It will examine how the environment is dealt with in international law; seminal agreements signed by the international community. The course will deal with the substantive environmental law relating to various pollutants and media- including waste, air, water, waste, habitat and conservation concerns. It will also address business concerns and environmental law such as trade and competition law; issues of corporate responsibility and liability.

EvidenceLAW 2006

The law of Evidence is that system or body of rules which regulates the admission of proof in a court of law.

Rationale of proof and law of Evidence. Basic concepts. Relevance. Admissibility. Materiality. Receivability. Functions of judge and jury. Judicial discretion. Sources of law of Evidence. Types of Evidence. Burden of proof. Standard of proof. Presumptions. Judicial notice. Corroboration. Proof of law. Competence. Compellability. Examination of witnesses. Privileges. Family LawLAW 2007

This course provides a comprehensive and current treatment of all aspects of law concerning the family and family relationships in Ireland. Family Law in Ireland is influenced by the interaction and impact of constitutional, public law, common law, criminal law, European law, European human rights law, international law and international and domestic statutory reforms of family law. It examines the rights and duties that arise from the existence of family relationships and deals with the procedures available to resolve such disputes. Family Law is one of the broadest and fastest expanding areas of law. The complexity of family relationships is mirrored in the study of the law governing those relationships providing a stimulating and interesting examination of current and controversial issues.

A course of lectures will be given on most of the following topics. Sociological aspects of the family. The family and the constitution. Formalities and the contract of marriage. Nullity of marriage, including the development of the void and voidable grounds. Resolution of marital breakdown covering legal separation, judicial separation and divorce. Consequences of marital breakdown, including maintenance, custody and access, financial and property relief. Domestic violence, spousal and cohabitee protection. International child abduction. Child abuse and care proceedings. Wardship. Adoption. Ownership of and disputes concerning family property. Recognition of foreign divorces. International maintenance. Abortion. The right to die.

A comprehensive course outline indicating relevant reading materials will be available at the start of term.

International Business Law

LAW 2009

An analysis of the legal framework of business transactions as developed in an international context. The course is divided into two parts. The first part provides an analysis of international commercial transactions and the second part is dedicated to dispute resolution in international commercial transactions. The following topics will be covered:

Part One: Analysis of International Commercial Transactions

Topics will include:

- A study of the law applicable to international commercial agreements and of the formation of international agreements.
- An overview of the main types of international commercial transactions such as:
 - international contracts (including contracts of international sales of goods, agency and distribution agreements, international transfer of technology and know-how agreements, counter-trade agreements);
 - international banking and financial law;
 - international tax law;
 - international company and bankruptcy law.
- The course will also focus on the protection and remedies available in case of breach or non-performance of international commercial agreements.

Part Two: Dispute Resolution in International Commercial Transactions

Topics will include:

- An overview of international dispute resolution, including:
 - international negotiation;
 - alternative dispute resolution;
 - court litigation of international commercial agreements.
- A study of international commercial arbitration with an emphasis on:
 - the analysis of the formation and the validity of the international arbitration agreement.

International Human Rights Law

LAW 2010

This course involves a study of the promotion and protection of human rights under international law. Since international human rights is itself a subset of public international law, the course entails a brief introduction to the development and nature of international law and the evolution of international human rights law.

The substantive part of the course includes a study of the legal foundations of contemporary international human rights law with particular emphasis on the international bill of rights drafted under the auspices of the United Nations. It also focuses on the means by which individuals may enforce their rights under the aegis of that organisation, e.g. through various complaint procedures and international fact finding processes. Other topics include, the protection afforded by international law to particular groups of persons, e.g. refugees and asylum-seekers.

The course also focuses on the European system for the protection of human rights established by the Council of Europe. In particular, it examines the individual petition procedure established by the European Convention on Human Rights, as well as critically analysing the jurisprudence of the European Court of Human Rights in relation to selected substantive rights guaranteed under the Convention.

Irish Legal History

LAW 2016

An overview of the history of law in Ireland. General considerations – sources, variety of legal records and their significance, impact of mainstream European legal traditions, nexus with English common law.

Gaelic Ireland – the law tracts, interpretation and historical value, consideration of selected tracts.

Medieval Irish lordship – arrival of common law, evolution of courts, import of common law doctrine, liberties and franchises, interaction of common law and brehon law.

From the Tudors to 1800 – constitutional development: Poyning's law, acts of state, non-enactment of Irish Bill of Rights; institutional diversity: palatinates, Munster and Connacht presidencies, prerogative and conciliar jurisdictions, ecclesiastical courts; the penal laws against Catholics and Dissenters.

Medical Law

LAW 2017

Ideally, medical law serves important needs in our society: it regulates properly the medical profession; it provides a reliable and effective means of investigating medical accidents; it creates an adequate and rational system of compensation for patients suffering injury; and it gives doctors understandable guidance on those areas of medical practice of moral ethical sensitivity. This course covers in detail Irish medical law, includes a generous comparative dimension, and critically reviews the question of whether existing law meets the needs mentioned above.

The course has four parts. Part 1 examines the subject of medical law and ethics. It encompasses the nature of medical practice, the intersection between law and ethics, the question of a rational ethical framework for medical practice and law, and the issue of medical confidentiality and the duty of disclosure (with particular reference to treatment of HIV/AIDS). Part 2 deals with the subject of medical malpractice. The focus will be upon consent, medical negligence, medical litigation, drug-induced damage and fault liability. Part 3 concentrates on medical law in action in areas of life from conception to death. Its compass will include infertility, facilitating conception, contraception, abortion, infertility, wrongful conception, pre-natal injury, selective treatment of neonates, tissue donations and transplants, research, medical treatment and surgery, treatment of the dying and death. Part 4 is concerned with law and psychiatry. Basic elements include the concept of mental disorder, voluntary admissions to hospital, involuntary hospitalisation, the right to refuse treatment, the legal aspects of treatment, review of detentions and treatments, rights in hospital, patient advocacy, disabilities and discriminations, the criminal justice system and mental disorder.

Diploma in Common Law

LWDPF0001

Course Description

The Diploma in Common Law is a one-year Diploma course awarded to students from French partner law schools who successfully complete their legal studies at UCD. This Diploma is available only to those students from France who are enrolled in the Faculty as a consequence of the exchange arrangements which attend the BCL (Law with French Law) degree.

Course Syllabus

Students take four BCL subjects determined by the Faculty of Law in agreement with the relevant French partner institutions. Two of the subjects selected must be the Common Law subjects Contract and Tort and the remaining two will be selected from the range of subjects available in the BCL curriculum.

For further information see syllabus of courses for the degree of Bachelor of Civil Law degree.

Examination Regulations

Students must pass each of their chosen subjects.

Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (BBLs)

Regulations

1. The Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies is a joint primary Degree of the Faculty of Law and the Faculty of Commerce.
2. The Degree may be conferred either as a Pass Degree or as a Degree with Honours.
3. Approved courses of study must be attended for at least twelve terms after matriculation.
4. Candidates for the Degree must have fulfilled the Matriculation requirements of the National University of Ireland by passing the Leaving Certificate Examination of the Department of Education in the following subjects:
 - i. Irish
 - ii. English
 - iii. Another recognised language
 - iv. Mathematics (A minimum of Grade D3 on the Higher paper or Grade B3 on the Ordinary paper at the Leaving Certificate Examination);
 - v. & vi Any two recognised subjects not already selected.
5. General:
 - 5.1 A unit is a set of approximately twenty-four hours of lectures for non-semesterised courses and thirty-six hours of lectures for semesterised courses.
 - 5.2 Each course of study is composed of one or more units. Each course will be followed by an examination.
 - 5.3 Credits will be given for each course passed. Each level of the Degree programme contains sixty credits apart from Mode III Level 4 which contains 62 credits.
 - 5.4 No compensation applies in any examination in the degree.
 - 5.5 Examination results are awarded on the basis of individual subjects rather than on an overall award for an individual year of the course. However, in the award of the degree, an overall class will be awarded by aggregating the results of the subjects at Level 3 and Level 4.
 - 5.6 Please note the following definition of terms in relation to business courses:

Course: A series of lectures, associated course work (if any) and the examinations associated with the course.

Course Work: All essays, projects, mid-term examinations etc. that contribute towards the final mark for a course in addition to the final written examination paper.

Examination Offering: There are two examinations associated with each course. The first examination termed the First Offering, held immediately after the course, and the second examination termed the Second Offering, held at a later date, normally at the end of the subsequent semester for semesterised courses and Autumn for non-semesterised courses.

Deferral of Examination: Where the first examination offering associated with a course is not taken for whatever reason.

- 5.7 In relation to business courses, students who do not obtain the credits associated with a course by the second examination offering may be required to re-register for that course, re-attend, complete any assigned course work, pass the course examination and pay the associated fee.

Please note: The business courses are as prescribed for the academic year 2004/2005. Students should note that the business courses listed for Levels 1, 2, 3 and 4 for the academic year 2005/2006 and subsequent years may change, may be dropped or may be modified.

6. The degree is composed of a number of courses which are given at four levels. Level 1 courses are offered at the commencement of the degree programme. These are followed by Level 2 and Level 3 courses. Level 4 courses are taken in the final stage of the degree programme. The academic requirements of the degree will be satisfied when all the stipulated courses have been passed.

In Level 4 students may choose to specialise in Law or in Business Studies. Depending on the Mode chosen, students may take one or two additional optional subjects in their chosen discipline and drop an optional subject in the other discipline.

Business Studies courses in Levels 2 (except MIS 1002, MIS 1005 and ECON 2208), 3 and 4 are semesterised and examinations are held at the end of each course. The second offering examinations for first semester courses will be offered at the end of the second semester of the same year. The second offering examinations for the second semester examinations will take place at the end of the first semester of the following year.

The following refers to business courses:

Students should note that it is likely that second offering examinations for second semester courses of the previous academic year will be held in the first week of January and in the first week of the second semester.

7. Progress from Level 1 to Level 2:

7.1 Students who obtain a total of sixty credits on the combined results of the Summer and Autumn examinations of the Level 1 courses are eligible for unrestricted entry into Level 2 courses.

7.2 To enter Level 2, students must satisfy the following conditions after combining the results of the Summer and Autumn examinations of Level 1:

- a. obtain thirty credits in business courses, and
- b. pass two legal studies subjects. Students are permitted to carry the remaining legal studies subject to Level 2. Students who have not passed at least two legal studies subjects are not eligible for entry into Level 2, but may repeat the subjects failed in the following year's examinations.

If a student satisfies the legal studies requirement as stated in point (b) above, but fails to satisfy the requirements of point (a), then that student cannot progress to Level 2 without the permission of the Faculty of Commerce. Credits for outstanding Level 1 courses must be obtained before entering Level 3.

- 7.3 All courses in BBL5 Level 1 must be passed within two years of entering Level 1. Otherwise the student may not remain in the programme.

Please Note with regard to business courses:

The business course half of the Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies is currently in the process of review and it is likely that substantial changes will take place in the programme of study for all levels from the academic year 2005/2006 onwards.

Students who fail to achieve the thirty business credits in Level 1 by the second examination offering in 2004/2005 may not be in a position to take Level 1 examinations based on 2004/2005 courses in subsequent years. The provisions of Rule 14 will then apply.

8. Progress from Level 2 to Level 3 (and Level 3 to Level 4):
- 8.1 Students who pass at least two legal studies courses in Level 2 are eligible to enter Level 3, subject to having passed all Level 1 courses.
- 8.2 Students who pass at least two legal studies courses in Level 3 are eligible to enter Level 4, subject to having passed all Level 2 courses.
9. Where a student passes an examination after more than one attempt, his or her overall mark will be the successful examination mark.
10. Students cannot be registered for any course (s) nor attempt any examination (s) in course (s) from more than two consecutive levels in any one academic year.
11. Examinations of more than two consecutive levels may not be taken at the same sitting.
12. If a Law course is terminated or changed, it will not normally be examined in its original form for more than two years. In the event of a business course being changed, modified or terminated, then no other examination for that course will be offered other than the second offering examination.
13. A student's choice of Level 4 Mode must be made in writing at the end of the Level 3 academic year. The Mode choice is not open to change at any time. A student's choice of Level 4 Law and Business course electives must be made at the end of the Level 3 academic year.

The following only relates to Business courses. A student's application to choose Level 4 Business Semester 1 electives must be made at the end of the Level 3 academic year. The number of student places in courses / offering(s) of courses is determined by the Faculty of Commerce and an application to register for a course/offering does not guarantee entry into that course/offering. The elective(s) choice is not open to change at anytime. Where students have to indicate a list of preferences for courses, students are bound at all times into this list. Permission to be registered for a course and to attempt the examination at the end of any Level 4 course is contingent on the student satisfying the minimum attendance requirement of the course. Formal attendance at a course will be deemed to have commenced when Faculty records show that the student is enrolled for the course.

14. Permission to defer examinations in Law courses must be obtained from the Faculty of Law.

The following relates to business course deferrals. Students who do not obtain the credits associated with a course by the second examination offering may be required to re-register for that course, re-attend and pay the associated fee. Students should note that courses may change from year to year, may not be offered in certain years, and may be dropped entirely from the programme. This will require the substitution of a course (s) by additional course (s) and will entail re-registration, re-attendance and the payment of the appropriate fees.

The following refers to business courses:

Those students who do not obtain credits associated with a course by the second examination offering in their first cycle of registration for that course, may find that subsequent examination offerings, if any, may not be held at a time which is convenient and they may also find that these subsequent examination offerings may be time-tabled at the very same time as other examination offerings which they may still need to take.

15. Course Work

Where a mark is given for course work, a pass mark will not be awarded for the course unless at least 35% is attained in the written examination in that course.

The course work mark shall only be counted for the first examination offering of any course. The second examination offering mark shall therefore be based entirely on the written second examination offering paper.

16. Students who defer examinations run the risk of encountering administrative issues such as not being eligible to register to courses at the same time as those students who complete examinations on time, timings of second offering examinations, etc. As a consequence, students are advised not to defer examinations.
17. A course once passed cannot be disallowed.
18. A maximum of 40% of the total marks available in each course may be allotted to course work.

Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (European)

IFBDF0012

General Description

The Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (European) is a four-year programme, the third level of which is spent abroad at a European university as an integral element in the degree programme. The year abroad will be spent at an approved university studying both law subjects and business subjects. Whilst all Level 2 BBLS students may apply to participate in this degree, it is important to stress that the number of students who can take part in the programme will be limited by the number of places available in any given year.

Admission Procedure

Registered Level 2 Business and Legal Studies students may apply to transfer into the BBLS Degree (European Legal Studies) programme. Applications should be submitted to the Faculty before 1 March. A presentation on the Erasmus/Socrates Exchange Programme will be made early in the second semester. Permission to transfer into the Degree of Business and Legal Studies (European) programme is conditional upon the applicant's passing all Level 1 and Level 2 examinations in the session in which such permission is sought. Admission to the degree will be dated from 1 September immediately following the examination; no deferral will be allowed.

Course Requirements

Students in this programme must attend an approved European university on a full-time basis for one academic year between the completion of the Level 2 examinations in Business and Legal Studies and enrolment in Level 4 Business and Legal Studies courses. All courses selected abroad must be notified to the two Directors of the Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies Degree. Registration for Level 4 courses in UCD must follow directly on the year spent abroad.

Quinn School of Business reserve the right to inform parents/guardians or other family members if there are concerns about the safety or well being of students while abroad on approved Quinn School of Business Student Exchanges. In addition, if requested, students must respond to requests to contact their co-ordinator(s) both in UCD and in the host institution. Students must provide a suitable phone number for this purpose and should also monitor their email on a regular basis.

Examinations and Awards

During the year abroad, examinations will be taken in the host university. A satisfactory performance in these examinations will be a condition of entry to Level 4 of the Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (European) programme. Students who have not performed satisfactorily in their examinations at the host university will be required to sit repeat examinations if offered by the host university. An unsatisfactory performance in these examinations will have financial implications in respect of fees/grants.

The award of the Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (European) will be as for the Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies Degree. Marks obtained during the year abroad will not affect the class of degree awarded at the end of the programme. The final degree awarded will be determined purely on the student's performance in his/her Level 4 examinations.

Students should note that Business or Legal courses may be modified or unavailable in any given year.

 This course, as described above, is not a separate and distinct degree from the BBLS Degree.

Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (International)

IFBDF0013

General Description

The Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (International) is a five-year programme, the fourth level of which is spent abroad at a North American or Australian university as an integral element in the degree programme. The year abroad will be spent at a Law Faculty studying Law subjects only. However, it is important to stress that the number of students who can take part in the programme will be limited by the number of places available in any given year.

Admission Procedure

Registered Level 3 Business and Legal Studies students may apply to transfer into the Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (International) programme. Applications should be submitted to the Faculty before 1 March. A presentation on the various exchange programmes will be made towards the end of the first semester or early in the second semester. Permission to transfer into the Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (International) is conditional upon the applicant's passing all Level 3 examinations in the session in which such permission is sought. Admission to the degree will be dated from 1 September immediately following the examination; no deferral will be allowed.

Course Requirements

Students in this programme must attend an approved North American or Australian university on a full-time basis for one academic year between the completion of the Level 3 examinations in Business and Legal Studies and enrolment in Level 4 Business and Legal Studies courses. Registration for Level 4 courses in UCD must follow directly on the year spent abroad.

Examinations and Awards

During the year abroad, examinations will be taken in the host university. A satisfactory performance in these examinations will be a condition of entry to Level 4 of the Degree of Business and Legal Studies (International) programme. Students whose performance in the relevant examinations is deemed to be unsatisfactory will only be eligible for entry to the Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies. This may have financial implications for fees/grants.

The awards of the Degree of Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies (International) will be as for the Bachelor of Business and Legal Studies Degree. Marks obtained during the year abroad will not affect the class of degree awarded at the end of the programme.

Students should note that Business or Legal courses may be modified or unavailable in any given year.

 This course, as described above, is not a separate and distinct degree from the BBLS Degree.
